English Studies: Literature and Culture is an interdisciplinary program that will equip the students with skills to analyze culture, its signs and symbols, as well as to provide interpretation of cultural artifacts. Students will explore cultures of English-speaking countries such as the United States of America, the United Kingdom, Canada or Australia. Most importantly, the students will also develop their linguistic competence and communication skills for the exchange of ideas related to the socio-political and cultural phenomena of the countries in question. The program includes courses in information technology, modern humanities or digital humanities. Overall, the program fosters critical, creative and unconventional thinking deemed in need in the contemporary world.

In existence since 2008, the Celtic specialisation at the Faculty of English, Adam Mickiewicz University is a unique (both in Poland and abroad) English-Celtic study programme. Within the three-year B.A. studies we offer:

- Celtic-themed Courses/ courses with Celtic content complimentary to standard English courses, e.g. Welsh and Irish literature, history and culture of Wales and Ireland, ecolinguistics of Celtic languages (detailed descriptions are to be found on the webpage)
- Learning Welsh and Irish from scratch with envisaged fluency by the end of the three-year programme of studies
- Classes conducted by native speakers of English and Celtic languages
- Erasmus+ scholarships to Limerick (Ireland), Bangor (Wales, UK), Rennes (Brittany, France) and Mannheim (Germany) and areas with non-Celtic minority languages, such as Victoria-Gasteiz (the Basque Country, Spain)
The General Academic programme is designed to provide students with the practical skills of English as well as broaden their horizons with the knowledge of linguistics, literature and culture. English as a foreign language is taught in small groups according either to the British or American model of pronunciation. A variety of subjects related to linguistics such as, just to name but a few, phonology, history of English, general or contrastive linguistics inform students about the processes taking place in language, especially English. History and theory of literature aim to foster the interest in all of the literatures of the Anglo-sphere and provide tools for its academic description and understanding. Cultural studies and history give insights into the social, cultural and historical contexts so indispensable for both linguistic and literary academic pursuit, to which a B.A. seminar and B.A. thesis are just the preface.
All prospective teachers of English are welcome to apply to the teacher training specialization. It offers students the necessary qualifications to become teachers of English. It also combines the best practices of both the Faculty of English and the Center for English Teacher Training thus ensuring high quality of the didactic and pedagogic courses. This makes students even better prepared to take up the challenges of a teacher's work.

Classes are conducted by both Polish and South African specialists and the Afrikaans language courses are offered exclusively by native speakers from South Africa. Every year students organise a study trip to South Africa, where they visit important historical sites, explore the landscape, meet with people from across the broad spectrum of South African culture and politics, and experience South African culture first hand. By studying the complex South African situation, students adopt a critical approach to the reality around them and have a better understandings of international problems of the modern world. Students learn the geography of South Africa, the history of the country and the peoples, their languages and cultures as well as the history of South African literatures (in English and in Afrikaans).
The program includes both an intensive Dutch language module as well as a cultural module, allowing graduates to acquire skills advanced enough to understand and make interpretations of cultural, social and political phenomena within the Dutch language area (Holland, Flanders, Antilles and other overseas territories). The programme provides a profound understanding of the Dutch/Flemish heritage, including literature, media and history. It facilitates access into a job market and provides internships, in the cooperation with the diplomatic missions of Belgium and the Nederlands, as well as Dutch NGOs and corporations.

FULL DEGREE PROGRAMMES
The Australia and New Zealand (ANZ) MA Programme is the only such programme in Poland. It was created in response to the students' growing interest in these countries. The programme is interdisciplinary, allowing students to gain wide knowledge of various aspects of Australian and New Zealand literature, culture, history, society, as well as their varieties of the English language.

The interdisciplinary character of the programme is made possible thanks to cooperation with the AMU Faculty of History, whose experienced staff will be conducting part of the classes, e.g. in history and cultural anthropology.
“Anglophone Canada: literature, culture, language” is an interdisciplinary MA-level specialisation focusing on diverse aspects of literature, culture, history and society of English-speaking Canada and on selected language-related issues relevant for Canada. Seminars, classes and lectures are designed to encourage active analyses and interpretations of cultural, literary and language phenomena.
The Academic programme is designed to provide students with the practical skills of English as well as expand and deepen their knowledge of linguistics, literature and culture. English as a foreign language is taught in small groups according either to the British or American model of pronunciation. Subjects included in this practical component are designed to help students with the preparation of their M.A theses according to the Anglo-Saxon model of academic writing. A wide variety of subject and supplementary seminars accompanied with monographic lectures, all related to the students' fields of academic interests, facilitate the surge of knowledge which will be realised in the academic pursuit of linguistics, literature and culture of the Anglo-sphere, to which a M.A. seminar and M.A. thesis are just the introduction.
The MA specialization History and civilization of English-speaking countries is an innovative, interdisciplinary programme jointly run by the Faculty of English and AMU Institute of History. The programme aims to equip students of English and history with a broad spectrum of knowledge about history, societies, cultures and civilizations of English-speaking countries. In the age of globalization and expansion of the English language the in-depth knowledge and through understanding of historical and cultural influences of English-speaking areas on the world is a solid foundation of proper education of prospective English language specialists and historians.

The diverse study programme encompasses the political, socio-economic and cultural history and present-day of the British Isles and the United States; history and present-day of the English language as well as studies on various cultures in contact in English-speaking areas, e.g. Native Americans, race relations or the Polish diaspora.
The M.A. programme in Applied Cognitive Linguistics is aimed at students with an interest in psycholinguistic and neurolinguistic aspects of language processing in monolinguals and bilinguals, in healthy subjects and in those with speech and language disorders, as well as in the acquisition of the first and subsequent languages.

The programme focuses on cognitive aspects of language. Its aim is to provide students with sound foundations in applied and cognitive linguistics, as well as psycholinguistics, neurolinguistics and the psychology of language. A separate course in research methodology and design will enable the students to plan, conduct and report on their own empirical research projects.
The Dutch MA programme has a unique character, since it is a mix of academic studies and career-oriented courses. Our students not only master their command of the Dutch language, but also develop their cultural competence in the broadest sense of the word. The courses are conducted by both Polish lecturers and Dutch native speakers from the Netherlands and Flanders. The most recent innovation in our curriculum is the business module in the form of lectures or workshops held by specially invited people from the world of business and diplomacy. The guests represent various forms Dutch and Belgian entrepreneurship: production and trade companies, small firms and multinational corporations. Lectures are also held by specialists from economy departments of the Dutch and Flemish embassy, employees of the Flemish Representation in Poland, Flanders Investments & Trade and honorary consuls supporting Dutch and Belgian investments in Greater Poland.

The interdisciplinary character of the programme, including research methods of language and literature studies, ethnology, history and political science gives knowledge about the linguistic, ethnic and political conditions, including the identity issues, and their current forms in Balkan countries. The student gains practical knowledge of two regional languages – one is Slavonic chosen from Bulgarian, Macedonian, and Serbian (level B1) and one non-Slavonic from among Albanian, Greek, Romanian and Turkish (level B1). The practical knowledge of those languages is supplemented with comprehensive studies of Balkan contemporary literature and current cultural, social, political and economic transformations in the Balkans.
This two-year master aims at training students in areas of great relevance such as: organic chemistry, analytical chemistry, physical chemistry, nanoscience's, nanomedicine, innovative materials, medical and pharmaceutical chemistry. The courses, apart from highly regarded Polish scientists, are going to be conducted also by the worldwide scientists from Japan, Spain, Italy and UK.

We offer a lot of benefits for the students: a scholarship for each foreigner student (of about 400 € per month (1500 PLN), 20 scholarships are available), a summer school, and a large range of facilities offered to the students.

Enrollment in June 2017.
Students who have completed a B.A./B.Sc. and also obtained a masters, both from reputable universities, are considered for doctoral programmes.

Doctoral programmes are individually supervised. We strongly recommend that prospective applicants make initial enquiries with the potential supervisor or institute before submitting a formal application.

A research proposal is required along with your formal application.

All exchange students are eligible to choose from over 200 courses offered in English and other foreign languages. The course descriptions give detailed information about each course, course content, when it is taught, the syllabus, examination form, etc. The list is updated for the coming semester in late November/mid-May.

Questions regarding courses must be directed to the relevant department or faculty.

For questions concerning courses offered in other foreign languages than English, please contact the local international coordinator at your home university.

www AMU-PIE course list
AMU has participated in the Erasmus+ programme ever since it was launched in Poland in 1998. Erasmus+ program has attracted 28 EU countries, 3 EEA countries (Iceland, Lichtenstein and Norway), Turkey as a candidate country, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, plus 14 partner countries (such as Canada, USA, Japan, Taiwan, Serbia, Mozambique, Senegal, Armenia, Ukraine, Algeria, Russia, Philippines, Kazakhstan, Mexico and Peru).

International students coming to study at AMU within the Erasmus+ programme can expect:
- assistance from the Erasmus Office and programme coordinators from the faculties,
- assistance from Polish students,
- free courses of Polish language,
- dormitory accommodation,
- opportunities to participate in cultural events at the University and in Poznań,
- opportunities to participate in student get-togethers and sightseeing tours organized by AMU and ESN.

Students from partner Universities that an Erasmus+ Inter-Institutional Agreement has been signed with may spend one or two semester at AMU as a part of their studies.

How to apply:
Please contact your university’s Erasmus+ coordinator or international office to find out if you are eligible for exchange to the Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań. You must apply and be nominated through your home university. Your university has to send your nomination to: erasmus@amu.edu.pl

Nominated students will then be invited to complete their application for exchange in the on-line application system: http://incoming.amu.edu.pl

Online application for summer semester is usually open from November 1st until January 15th, whereas for winter semester from April 20th until June 30th.

English proficiency requirements: Incoming Erasmus students do not need to provide document for language proficiency such as IELTS or TOEFL, however English at minimum B1 level is obligatory in order to follow courses taught in English.

Courses in English:
Erasmus+ students may choose from more than 200 courses offered in English.

Tuition fee: There is no tuition fee for Erasmus + students.

For more information, please contact the International Office.
If you wish to study at AMU as an exchange student, you have to be enrolled at a higher education institution already.

Exchange students come to AMU through an institutional exchange agreement: an international exchange programme such as Erasmus and other bilateral agreements.

We would advise you to contact your own educational institution to find out about the possibilities of studying at AMU as an exchange student.

All exchange students are offered AMU-PIE courses during their studies at AMU.
Guest Students are students from universities with no cooperation agreement with Adam Mickiewicz University and free movers. The International Office at your home university can supply information on whether your university has an agreement with Adam Mickiewicz University.

Guests students and free movers are offered AMU-PIE course during their studies at AMU.
